

TAKING ELEPHANTS TO WATER

TOUR THE KUALA GANDA ELEPHANT SANCTUARY

Attractions

A slight rustle as leaves are crushed underfoot. A small baby elephant trots out merrily from the forest. It is followed by several rather more sedate adult elephants. They walk into the nearby river. Soon, you are waist deep in the water with them, scrubbing them with river sand as they idly turn over in the water for you. Gazing at him, you swear his eyes twinkle at you mischievously.

Let NCR Travel bring you on an unforgettable adventure starring the 'gentle giants' of Asia.

The journey

Your adventure begins with a scenic 1 hour 45 minute drive through idyllic 'kampungs' (traditional villages) and picturesque paddy and oil palm farms.

Aborigine Settlement

Try your hand at the 'sumpit' (traditional blowpipe), speak to the village headman, or just watch how the Che Wong tribes people go about their daily lives.

Elephants big and small

At the sanctuary, you can feed the elephants and marvel at how cleverly they use their trunks to pick a peanut from your palm. 'Resident elephants' will show you how they calm and translocate the wild elephants. Adventurous visitors can participate in bathing these gentle giants in the nearby river for a true jungle experience.

Explore the forest

"Almost as big as Singapore," is how the guide describes the size of the forest reserve. From leaves that have antiseptic properties when crushed to tree roots that produce a drinkable sap when tapped, the jungle trek will reveal some of nature's best kept secrets which can heal and kill you.

*Note*

- River activities would be cancelled if the water level is not safe.
- A change of clothes is necessary for those who intend to participate in the river activities.
